PRIVATE DAIRY COWS ARE NOT PROVIDED FOR

Japanese Hog Raisers Disdain Advice for Suppression of Cholera

In the matter of bovine tuberculosis control, Dr. Norgaard, in his December report, tells of the case of importation of thoroughbreds or a private dairy herd which, on the owners being prevailed on to have tested, proved to contain more than 33 per cent of infected animals. It was on the veterinarian's representation that the imported animals would be certain to become infected if placed among the old and diseased stock that consent was given for the test. In this connection, he calls attention to the fact that the milk ordinance does not require the testing of animals other than those from which milk is sold, and he urges upon owners of such the voluntary submission of their cows to testing. Only a small number of dairy herds had been tested in December.

Hog Cholera. According to a report received from Dr. Elliot, hog cholera has made its appearance among the hogs belonging to a plantation in the neighborhood of Hilo, where no hogs have been purchased or brought in for a long time. Every precaution has been taken to prevent its further spread.

The outbreak on Kauai has, according to Dr. Glaszner, subsided; while the suspected outbreak in a large pigery near Wahiawa as reported two months ago failed to materialize.

Mr. Sheba, editor of the Hawaii Shippo, had reported a fresh outbreak of hog cholera among Japanese ranches at Molili, where the present epidemic made its first appearance and caused the loss of 1000 hogs. Advice published in the Shippo two months previously that no more hogs be brought into that district unless first immunized by serum had been disregarded, and, referring to the fact that Japanese had been looking for land for a hog ranch at Kalihi, Dr. Norgaard says that if they continue to disregard advice and offers of assistance from his office it will be only a short time until the disease will be introduced in the new place.

He indicates that he is loath to prescribe the serum treatment, owing to its expense—$2 to $3 a head for large animals—wherever there is doubt about the identity of the disease. In the case of the malady that has been destroying hogs at Wahiawa, an exhaustive investigation was in progress to ascertain whether the cause was not poisonous ingredients in the swill obtained at the army post.

TICKET-SELLING CAMPAIGN PLAN OF THE GUARD

Resolution of Appreciation Will Be Forwarded to Gen. Funston by Organization

With 29 out of 35 officers of the national guard of Hawaii present, and Colonel Arthur Coyne, who recently assumed command of the 1st infantry, after an extended leave spent on the mainland, presiding, a meeting at which several matters of great interest to the guard came up for discussion, was held at the bungalow last night.

Members of several of the companies were also present, to talk over plans for making the tournament that is to open the new armory a military and financial success. The guard will take over the new building without a stick of furniture available for the company rooms or offices, and it is to raise sufficient funds to put the building in proper shape that the coming tournament is planned. Besides necessary furniture, a gymnasium is to be supplied with the necessary apparatus, and altogether the urgency of having the two-night entertainment a financial success, was brought out at the meeting.

Alan J. Lowrey, who is a "natural born organizer," was appointed to take charge of the ticket selling campaign, and he promptly compiled a list of business houses, which were divided up among the officers and others interested, to be canvassed for blocks of tickets. The national guard movement has received great impetus within the last few months, and while the guard is a territorial institution, the new armory is a tangible asset to Honolulu, and it is figured that residents will be glad to help the guard and its new home along. An individual ticket sale will follow the soliciting of the big firms, a certain number of tickets being apportioned to each company to be disposed of.

Friday and Saturday, February 13 and 14, are the dates set for the tournament. Following the military features of each evening will be a dance, that on Friday being the enlisted men's dance and the Saturday affair an officer's dance. Tickets for the opening night are 75 cents and for the second night $1. A special ticket will be sold to men of the regular service for 25 cents, good for the tournament and dance the first night, but not admitting bearer to the dancing floor on the second night, although good for the exhibitions.

Drill Nights Named. A matter of great importance to the guardsmen was the assignment of drill nights among the different companies, made at the meeting by Colonel Coyne. With nine companies and a hospital corps on Oahu it is necessary to have two organizations per night using the floor, leaving Saturday open for renting the hall, and Sunday also an open day. Fortunately it was possible to give the companies nights agreeable to all, after one or two of the captains had accommodatingly changed their former evenings.

Following is the assignment: Monday—Companies E and G. Tuesday—Companies F and H. Wednesday—Companies B and D. Thursday—Companies A and K. Friday—Company C and hospital corps.

Will Enter Float. The national guard will have a float in the Floral Parade. This was decided last night, when several ingenious decorative schemes were suggested. Lieutenant-colonel W. R. Riley will have this matter in charge, assisted by Captain A. W. Neely and Sergeant Fred Wichman.

The officers of the guard expressed their appreciation of the great assistance lent by General Funston to the reorganization of the 1st regiment, in securing authority to issue rifles, and stimulating interest in the militia in other ways. It was decided that a resolution of appreciation and thanks from the guard would be in order, and a committee, consisting of Major Johnson, and Captains Redington and Super, was named to draft these resolutions and have them properly engrossed.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

E. B. Bridgewater, publisher of the late "Sentinel," may face legal action as a result of his operations as publisher of the weekly paper, according to a current rumor. Bridgewater is now on Kauai, according to a report reaching Honolulu today.

The annual meeting of the American Forestry Association will be held in Washington on January 14. A president, 21 vice-presidents, a treasurer, an auditor and five directors are to be elected and plans made for an active campaign for forest conservation during 1914. The association has 8000 members.

Probably the simplest court livery in the world is that worn in the royal palace of Korea. The emperor's servants are all dressed in garments and headgear of red calico.
